

Accident & Incident Investigation Services

“Accidents or other incidents cannot always be avoided in industry or commerce. What is most important is that you understand quickly how failings have occurred and act swiftly to ensure they are not repeated. An essential element of Health & Safety Management system is the ability to reduce the risk of loss, injury or worse”

Valuable Evidence

An accident or incident investigation could provide you valuable defence evidence should you need to defend your organisation against a criminal prosecution or civil action. A thorough investigation demonstrates a commitment to reducing the number of accidents and a proactive approach to risk management.

Increasingly, some insurers make it a condition to their policies that accidents and incidents are thoroughly investigated. It is most likely that a legal duty will be imposed on employers to investigate all accidents.

Fast, effective Service

Our team of experienced and trained accident investigators carries out Allied Safety Services accident and incident investigation service. This is available either on a stand-alone basis, or as part of Allied Safety Services package. When accidents do occur, we realise that this requires the upmost urgent attention and will respond promptly to your requests.

The Report

Once an investigation is completed, we produce our initial findings and recommendations within two days. A comprehensive report is then prepared. This includes all relevant information, witness statements, photographs, conclusions and recommendations. Where a case may go to court, Allied Safety Services can provide expert witness advice.
